GIRL'S STORY PUTS
FATHER IN SHADOW OF ELECTRIC CHAIR

Little Rosa Walsh, Only Witness of Crime, Tells Coroner's Jury How He Murdered Mother with Axe.

The story Little Rose Ann Walsh, ten years old, told on the witness stand in the Coroner's Court to-day may send her father, Thomas Walsh, to the electric chair. The inquest was into the death of the child's mother, Mrs. Kate Walsh, in her home at No. 1923 Second avenue. Here is the child's story:

"Father didn't work that day. He didn't get home until late the night before, and when he did that he never worked the next day. He slept most of the time, but in the afternoon he got up and ate something which mamma prepared for him. Then he sent me out for a quart of beer. He drank all of it. Mamma didn't drink any. After that he went into the bedroom and went to sleep.

"Just before supper time he called for mamma to go into the bedroom. Mamma is deaf and didn't hear him. I ran out into the kitchen and told mamma that papa wanted her. She called out to me and said she didn't have time to leave the kitchen—that she was getting supper for the boarders."

"Papa got mad and yelled out: 'You won't come, eh? Well, I'll see whether you will or not,' and he came running out to the kitchen.

"He hit her with an axe. He grabbed mamma by the hair and knocked her head against the window sill. Then he reached for a bottle, but I grabbed it and picked up all the other bottles and hid them, so he couldn't get them. Papa went behind the table and got the axe that mamma chose the wood for the cook stove with, and when he came around he hit mamma on the head with it."

"Mamma fell down and the blood came out of her nose and ears and mouth. Papa pushed me into the other room, and then the neighbors came in and asked papa what he had done. The lady next door kept me in her house until they took mamma away in the ambulance, and I haven't seen my mamma since."

Little Rose Ann cried bitterly and was led from the stand.

Coroner Acritelli's jury quickly held the Walshs on a charge of murder. Rose's two aunts were taking her out of the court-room when the crowd suddenly broke away from them, ran back and threw her arms about her father's neck while the officers were putting handcuffs on him. She did not speak a word to him, but she planted a big, pressed a sentiment that could not be set to words.

CLUE FOUND TO SLAYER OF YOUTH IN LOVE FEUD.

Maggie Romano.

Witness Found Who Says
Rival Was Heard to Threaten Grasso.

BOY OF 18 IS ARRESTED.

Girls With Victim When He Was Killed Are in Custody Too.

Further evidence that the murder of young Joseph Grasso while he was walking on East Third street with two young girls was the outcome of a love feud in which a dozen East Side youths are fighting for the smiles of the two beautiful Italian girls came to light this afternoon after Detective Michaels and Donnelly had arrested Louis Gluck, eighteen years old. After Gluck had been held with the two girls for the Coroner, the police came upon a clue that may lead to the arrest of several other boys who sport as beaux in the parks and on the recreation piers along East River.

The girls, each sixteen years old, who are the cause of it all, according to the police, have withdrawn the test of the third degree remarkably well. Young Gluck has also been firm in his refusal to tell anything, although it is gossip among the swains and sweethearts of the district that he was a would-be rival of Grasso. The girls are Margaret Carnovale, who lives with her parents at No. 46 East Twelfth street, and Maggie Romano, of the same address.

The latest clue to the killing was obtained by an Evening World reporter, who found Frank Felice, a young man who lives in East Twelfth street, near the home of the girls. He said that about a month ago, when Grasso first began to go about with them, he was attacked on the recreation pier at the foot of East Third street. It was a hard fight, and the police were called to disperse the crowd. At the time it was understood that the boys were quarrelling over the two belles.

Says He Heard Threats.

"Last night," said Felice, "I was on the pier when Grasso was there with Margaret and Maggie. As he walked away with them I heard a fellow we call Tony 'Bones' say to a nobody else: 'I'll shoot that — to-night.' I didn't think anything of it at the time, but I saw Tony follow after Grasso with a couple of other fellows. Some time later I heard of the shooting."

Felice said that Tony "Bones" lives in Brooklyn, but often comes to the East Side Italian colony. When the detectives were informed of this they at once began a search for him. Grasso lived with his aunt and three brothers at No. 115 East Eleventh street. He was only eighteen years old, but earned good wages as a bartender in the saloon at Second avenue and Thirty-fifth street. He was known to be attentive to the Carnovale girl, and his brother referred to her as "his steady." They said to-day that they had no suspicion as to the identity of the men who shot him.

Three Held Him Up.

Grasso called at his sweetheart's home last night and asked the two girls to go with him to Tompkins Square Park. The trio were on a park bench, when fire engines dashed past. At the same time the sky was lit up by three burning barges at the foot of Rivington street, and the firemen worked.

Returning from the fire the boy escorted his companions through Third street on his way to their home. They were nearing Goerck street when suddenly three men sprang from a doorway and fired at them. Grasso was wounded in the chest and fell. The two girls ran to his side and called for help. The police arrived and took the girls into custody. They were held for the Coroner to await his action.

Coroner Shady sent both girls to the house of Detention as witnesses to await the result of the inquest. Louis Gluck was also held as a witness under $100 bond.

Gluck and the two girls were arraigned before Magistrate Breen in District Court to-day as suspicious persons. They did not appear at all disturbed, and made no comment when they were remanded to the custody of the Coroner to await his action.

AMERICAN LEAGUE PARK, New York, Sept. 7.—About 5,000 persons assembled here this afternoon to pay homage to the coming champions. The Athletics in war paint showed up early and little time was lost in preliminaries. Having passed the "13" mark the Highlanders feel able to cope with any situation just now, and the Athletics look no more victorious than Bush League.

The Yankees have only four more days at home and Griffith is determined to make hay while the sun shines. By making a clean sweep home he feels he can start West sufficiently fortified to stand a few setbacks. Connie Mack has about abandoned hope of doing anything real smart this season and practically concedes the pennant to New York or Chicago.

"My team is badly crippled," said Mack this afternoon, "and I don't see how we can make it finish first. Still, while there is life there is always hope, and we will keep trying."

First Inning.

RACE TRACK, SHEEPSHEAD BAY, Sept. 7.—Penarris, running in the colors of his new owner, M. L. Schwartz, won the six furlong handicap for two-year-olds at Sheepshead this afternoon. Shaw rode Penarris and made all the running. Penarris was lucky, for the best horse in the race was Joe Miller, who was ridden by Miller.

As a rule Miller gets away in front, but to-day he was off slow and had to make up all his ground on the outside. He showed amazing speed, but the gap was too big, and he finished a length and a half behind Penarris. Ethon was third.

In the opening event the talent were divided between Beggar Maid and Anna May. Miller showed in the money, and Eudora, an 8 to 1 chance, making all the running, won in a hot drive by a head from Yorkist, a 15 to 1 chance, who beat Fish Hawk a head.

Cottontown won the second race. He had to be much the best to win, for (Continued on Twelfth Page.)

REBELS DYNAMITE
BRIDGES, CUBANS
CALL FOR GUNS

Battle Likely in Effort of Government to Restore Railway Traffic.

HAVANA, Sept. 7.—Two bridges on the Western Railway were blown up by the rebels to-day.

The bridges, which were situated between Pinar del Rio and San Luis, were destroyed by dynamite. A force of men sent to repair the bridges, which were built of concrete and steel, was stopped by a body of rebels numbering at least five hundred men.

Gen. Azaola, commander of the Government forces in the Province of Pinar del Rio, has telegraphed to the authorities here asking them to send three rapid-fire guns to the scene of the bridge destruction, in order to enable him to protect the workmen sent to rebuild the spans.

With proper protection the railroad company officials think they can repair the bridges in five days. Pinar Guerra's force, however, is becoming increasingly numerous in that part of the country. The people there do not think that the Government can suppress the insurrection.
